Give Your High School Pupils The Best

Latin for the First Year—Gunnison and Harley. Prepares for the reading of "CAESAR" and of other Latin authors. Excels in simplicity and thoroughness of treatment.

Caesar's Gallic War—Gunnison and Harley. Contains all the text, prose composition, and grammar necessary for the second year. First of the famous "Three in One" series.

Cicero's Orations—Gunnison and Harley. Seven orations, sight reading, grammar, and prose composition—the entire third year's work in one volume.

Burton's Latin Grammar—Presents the essentials of grammar so that they stand out clearly and simply; the additional facts necessary for a complete, scholarly treatment are so arranged as to be readily usable but never burdensome.

*This series is steadily increasing in favor.

PRACTICAL ENGLISH COMPOSITION

IN FOUR BOOKS

By E. L. MILLER

Principal of The Northwestern High School, Detroit, Mich., and Member of the National Joint Committee on the Reorganization of English in Secondary Schools

THIS series marks a radical departure in methods of teaching English, flexible, direct, and informal. It shows the why and how of work in English Composition. All four forms of discourse receive attention in each volume, but emphasis is placed as follows:

Book I. Description (Letter-Writing)	Book III. Exposition (Literary effect)
Book II. Narration (Journalism)	Book IV. Argumentation (Civic aspects of composition)

A few of the cities using books of the series:

AN UNRIVALLED SERIES
WELLS AND HART'S
NEW HIGH SCHOOL ALGEBRA

Has been adopted and is now used in all the high schools of five states as well as in many hundreds of schools in states that do not require uniformity

The equation is made the core of the course; exercise and problems of the kind that pupils can solve are provided in abundance; the subject is enriched and made concrete through the introduction of geometric, informational, and physical problems; the pupils are taught to think, not merely to do. Books are supplied either with answers or without answers, as schools prefer.

WELLS AND HART'S GEOMETRY

Among the features of the Geometry which have received unqualified praise are the following: (1) its embodiment of pedagogical insight and experience; (2) its beginning with easy and practical matters; (3) the happy device by which a minimum course of exceptional clearness and utility is provided without detracting from the successful use of the book in meeting the exacting demands now made upon secondary-school mathematics. The book in method, material, adaptability, and perfect serviceableness offers what geometry teachers have long sought but have not hitherto found. Plane and Solid Geometry, $1.32; Plane Geometry, 80 cents; Solid Geometry, 76 cents.

Elementary Principles of Agriculture

By Ferguson and Lewis

ON THE LIST OF APPROVED HIGH SCHOOL TEXTS IN AGRICULTURE FOR NORTH CAROLINA

Read what some prominent North Carolina educators say of this book---

Prof. M. C. S. Noble, Dean of the School of Education, University of North Carolina, says: "This is a book admirably adapted for use of classes in agriculture in high schools and farm-life schools. The text statements are clear and direct and the illustrations reinforce and add clearness and directness to these statements in a way that cannot fail to develop interest and compel attention. * * * It is full of the best thoughts and suggestions for teachers of elementary classes and the use of this book * * * is sure to meet with success and justify the teaching of agriculture in the schools of the land."

Mr. M. E. Sherwin, Professor of Soils, North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering, writes:

"The book appeals to me as the best book that I have seen for the grades for which it is intended. I shall be glad to see it adopted for use in North Carolina High Schools."

Prof. C. L. Newman, Professor of Agriculture in the North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering, says:

"I find that the text is accurate, concise and that the illustrations are very appropriate. It is written attractively, orthodoxly and interestingly. I feel no hesitancy in indorsing it as a text in schools for which it is designed."

LIVE OR DEAD LITERATURE?

There are old classics, of course, that will never die. But birth and death are common to literature and humanity. What is live literature, fit to be read in the schools, is not the same yesterday, today, and tomorrow:

SOME NEW CLASSICS

WISTER: THE VIRGINIAN (edited by James F. Hosis).

(A live virile story of American life, which is recognized as an American classic).

LONDON: THE CALL OF THE WILD (edited by Theodore C. Mitchill).

(A classic story of a dog—probably the best dog-story ever written).

REPRESENTATIVE SHORT STORIES (edited by Hart and Perry).

(A mixture of the new and the old; 20 stories; 297 pages).

REDUCE THE HIGH COST OF LIVING

These books are in the Macmillan Pocket Classics series, which contains about 170 volumes, well edited and durably and attractively bound, in convenient form—at only 25 cents each. Write us for further information, or give us a trial order. For the convenience of our North Carolina patrons, we maintain a stock in Raleigh with the North Carolina School Book Depository, who will give the regular wholesale discounts.

Mr. W. E. Hipps, Supt.,
Public Schools Buncombe County,

Dear Sir:-

I understand that Mr. H. E. Bonitz, Architect, among other architects, has been invited to submit credentials as to his ability and efficiency in his line.

As one of the Trustees of the Greenville Graded Schools, I will state that we have recently completed a High School Building here, and Mr. Bonitz was our Architect. I take much pleasure in saying that his service was highly satisfactory in every way. He was business like and pleasant in all the transactions in connection with us, and I think that he is perfectly fair with both builder and contractor.

Yours very truly,

James L. Little

The High School Journal

A modern Journal of Secondary Education that will keep you informed month by month of the best that is being thought and done in the educational world.

Great new currents of thought and life are stirring today that will profoundly influence American education tomorrow. Great high school movements are already in progress. The end of the war will bring other new problems that will force upon us the necessity for the reorganization, redirection, and readaptation of secondary education.

The high school will be the storm center in this conflict, and it will remain a storm center for the next decade or so.

THE HIGH SCHOOL JOURNAL will put you in contact and keep you in contact with these great modern movements in secondary education. To know these movements and to feel their force will broaden your vision, enlarge your view, and improve you professionally.

Subscription price $1.00 per year.
